

General Care and Maintenance of uPVC

05/19/2024 6:58 pm EDT

Hey there! If you're thinking about getting Ambiance uPVC windows and doors, you're in for some great benefits! These windows and doors are designed to need minimal maintenance, which means they'll save you both time and money. They won't absorb moisture, so no need to worry about sanding, varnishing, or painting them like other options.

Keeping them clean is a breeze too! For basic cleaning, just use some mild dish-washing liquid mixed with water. If there's stubborn dirt, you can get special cleaning agents from a window specialist, but stay away from paint thinners or scouring agents – they're a no-go.

Remember to clean the outside of your windows regularly, especially if there's pollen and other particles from the air. Also, keep those drainage openings in the frame clean to help with drainage.

Now, for some maintenance tips. Make sure to keep your living areas well-ventilated to reduce humidity. It's a good idea to aim for a relative humidity level below 60 percent, and you can check it with a hygrometer.

When doing any construction work around your windows, be careful not to get lime and mortar splashes on them – that stuff can cause damage.

And here's the last bit: once a year, give the fittings a little lubrication, and every six months, treat the frame seals with a sealing agent like talcum or silicon oil (you can get those from specialists). That'll keep everything in top-notch condition.

So, with Ambiance uPVC windows and doors, you'll have a low-maintenance, hassle-free experience, and your home will look great without all the extra work!
